

ANDREW C. CARLOS MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS INSTITUTE AT SHEPHERD CENTER

The Multiple Sclerosis Institute at Shepherd Center has extensive experience treating people with multiple sclerosis (MS), suspected MS or related disorders. We have treated thousands of people with MS using a wide range of neurological and rehabilitative services.

The MS Institute believes that early and appropriate treatment results in better quality of life for people with MS and may protect against future illness. Our staff of medical professionals works aggressively to slow the progression of the disease. Treatment options focus on medications, physical rehabilitation (including strength and energy conservation, health and wellness) and experimental therapies. The MS Institute offers comprehensive evaluations, diagnostics, rehabilitation services and treatment options through FDA-approved drugs and new clinical trials.

Our team works aggressively to slow the progress of the disease, focus on rehabilitation that emphasizes realistic goals for maximum independence, promote family involvement, and empower people with MS to make decisions and take responsibility for their own health care.

The MS Institute has a range of supportive services, including a wellness program designed specifically for individuals with multiple sclerosis, psychological counseling, educational programs, vocational services, nutritional counseling and therapeutic recreation programs.

Multiple sclerosis (MS) affects more than 400,000 Americans and 7,000 Georgians. Although there is no cure for MS, it is treatable. Treatments can slow the progression of the disease and make a difference in people's lives.
